

Real creativity thrives on solving real problems while negotiating with the real quirks of real clients, weaving a path through all the real restrictions set by a real brief.

Teaching creativity through phoney briefs is fatuous at best.

